

Carter says plans will be pursued

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter, who won the White House by only 27 electoral votes, vows that the slimmest of victories will not halt his plans to aggressively pursue new goals for the nation.

The Democratic president-elect spoke on the main street of his little home town of Plains, Ga., on Thursday night, and a crowd of some 400 watched in the chill autumn air as reporters, seated on metal chairs in the middle of the street, asked questions of the president-designate at the town's old railroad station.

"I wish we could have carried all 50 states, but since I didn't, I hope to demonstrate even before my inauguration my complete commitment to being president of all the American people," Carter said, holding his first nationally broadcast news conference since the election.

The news conference, he said, will be the first of many. He said he hopes to hold at least two each month after taking office in January.

He said the narrow win would not stop him from "moving aggressively to carry out my campaign commitments." And he said there is a strong possibility he will seek a tax cut for average wage earners as one way of stimulating the economy if it does not pick up on its own by Jan. 20, when Carter will take the oath of office.

He said any such tax cut would be designed to increase the purchasing power of the average American family and would be oriented toward lower-income workers.

But the Democrat said he does not intend any interference with the workings of the Ford administration during its final days. In fact, Carter said after the news conference that he will spend less time in Washington than had been expected before the Jan. 20 inauguration.

Earlier, Carter had indicated he would spend several days a week in the capital in transitional offices. But Thursday, he said he would spend less time in Washington to avoid the suggestion that he is trying to interfere with or second guess the last Ford administration decisions.

As for the plans of his own administration, Carter admitted there would be difficulties in carrying out his goals. But he said he thinks his promises can be fulfilled, especially since he will be working with a Democratic Congress.

He mentioned hopes for overhauling the federal bureaucracy, for welfare and

Highlights of Carter conference

NEWS CONFERENCES

Carter said he planned to hold at least two full-scale news conferences a month during his administration.

TAX CUT

He said his economic experts think a tax cut might be necessary to stimulate the economy if it is stagnant in January, adding that "this is a strong possibility." He said a tax cut would be aimed at stimulating purchasing power.

THE ELECTION

Carter said his popular and electoral majorities were in the range of other elections and that he felt he had "a clear majority of the electorate in this country." He said that is enough of a mandate to allow him to carry out his programs.

FOREIGN POLICY

Carter administration foreign policy priorities will be to restore good relations with allies and to open up policy-making decisions to Congress and the people.

CABINET

Carter said economic and foreign policy appointments will have precedence and that he does not expect to make any decisions on Cabinet members until December. He said he would follow the same general procedure he used in picking Walter Mondale as his running mate.

OIL PRICES

Carter said any increases in prices by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, scheduled to meet in December, would be regrettable. But he said he could take no official action since President Ford still retains responsibility for foreign policy until January.

WHITE HOUSE STAFF

Carter said he would "never permit my White House staff to run all the departments of the government." He said White House aides would serve as staff and advisers and not administrators.

Economic slowdown continuing

Unemployment hits 7.9

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate rose from 7.8 per cent to 7.9 per cent in October, the government reported today, providing fresh evidence that the economic slowdown is continuing.

The unemployment rate is one of the economic indicators President-elect Jimmy Carter is watching as he considers whether to propose a tax cut after taking office in January. He told a news conference Thursday night that a tax cut for average wage earners "could be a strong possibility if there is no change in the rate of growth of the economy and if economic indicators should show a negative aspect."

The October jobless figure matched the unemployment rate in August and prompted the Labor Department to describe the labor market as essentially unchanged for the past three months.

But because the labor force is constantly growing, the unemployment rate alone can mask the actual number of persons affected by the indicator.

The number of persons unemployed in October was 7.6 million, the most since 7.7 million were out of work in December.

Employment, which has been growing even as the unemployment rate rose from 7.3 per cent to 7.9 per cent this summer, has now declined for two consecutive months to 87.8 million. And that's the smallest number of people at work since 87.7 million persons held jobs in May.

Ford administration economists for months have described the current economic slowdown as "a summer lull." But Carter's top economic adviser, Lawrence R. Klein, has called for an additional $10 billion to $15 billion in economic stimulus through a tax cut, higher federal spending, or both.

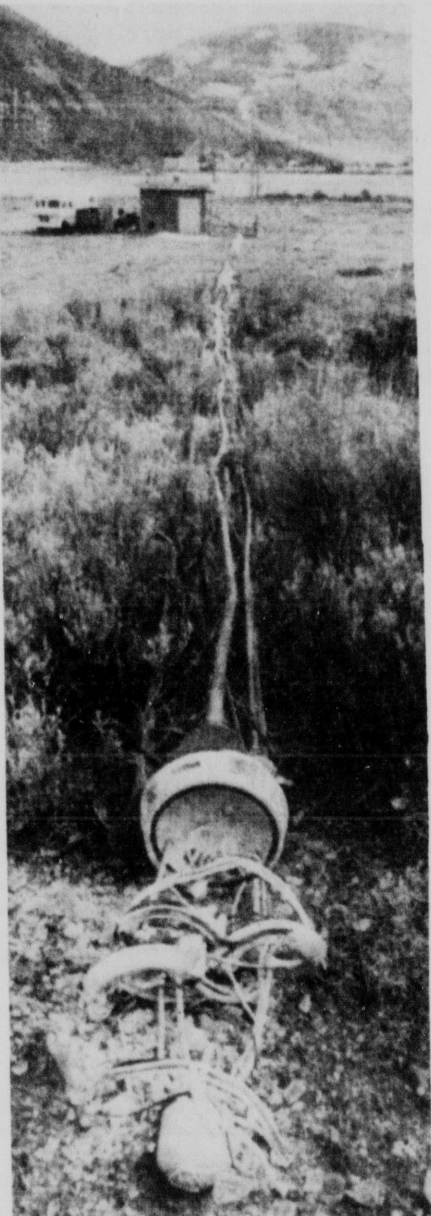

The latest unemployment figures showed that even the individual categories which had shown some improvement in September fell back again in October.

Teenage unemployment had slipped from 19.7 per cent to 18.6 per cent in September but rose to 19 per cent last month. Black unemployment, which had slipped from 13.6 per cent to 12.7 per cent, hit 13.5 per cent in October.

The unemployment rate for adult men was up from 6.1 per cent to 6.3 per cent. The rate for adult women climbed one-tenth of a per cent to 7.6 per cent.

In other economic news:

—The latest report on wholesale prices on Thursday showed they climbed by six-tenths of 1 per cent. A rise in commodity prices outweighed a nine-tenths of 1 per cent drop in the prices of farm and feed products.

Rhodesian stalemate continues

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Black and white leaders failed today to break a deadlock over a target date for black rule in Rhodesia.

"Round 15 is beginning" in a sparring match between the two sides, black nationalist Robert Mugabe said as he left today's fruitless talks.

"It has gone on — nothing has really happened," said Rhodesian Foreign Minister Pieter K. Van der Byl. "Our position remains unchanged." Van der Byl is acting head of the white minority government's delegation at the British-sponsored conference on Rhodesia's future.

Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith has insisted on a two-year timetable for transition to majority rule in the overwhelmingly black African nation. The heads of the four black nationalist delegations are demanding a one-year transition.

The British chairman of the conference, Ivor Richard, on Thursday suggested a compromise formula of 17 months. Van der Byl hinted that his government might be willing to advance its timetable a few months, but the blacks stuck to their one-year demand.

Mugabe, who represents most of the black guerrillas fighting in Rhodesia, had threatened to walk out of the conference over the issue. But today he said he would remain in Geneva.

Over the weekend Richard will return to his earlier tactic of bilateral consultations with the delegates in an attempt to loosen the negotiating logjam, British officials said. Richard hopes to call another full conference session early next week, they said.

Local 823 rejects agreement

Members of Firefighters Local 823 rejected 36-1 Friday a written agreement proposal approved by the City Council which would have established in writing working, salary and benefit conditions between the firemen and the city.

The vote was not unexpected after the council Monday eliminated three of what Local 823 president Robert Vogler described as "the gut issues" of the originally-proposed agreement. These issues were a guarantee for federal mediation in grievance procedures, a guarantee of unspecified "prevailing" rights and a minimum personnel requirement for the department.

Vogler said Friday morning immediately after the vote there was "absolutely no talk of striking" and dismissed the possibility of such action. He did state that, if another document is submitted later to the council for consideration, it will call for "binding arbitration, not just mediation."

Vogler said he feels the firemen's cause may possibly be helped by the election of Jimmy Carter to the presidency because it is felt that there will be a greater chance to pass federal legislation granting municipal employees the right of collective bargaining.

Mayor Allen Hawkins later Friday morning termed the firemen's rejection of the proposed agreement "unfortunate" because "they have now thrown several other good improvements contained in the document out the window just because of a few aspects of the agreement they didn't like. Well, they haven't gotten anything now in the form of a written agreement, nothing in writing at all."

Hawkins said he does not expect the council to further consider the proposal.

"They've burned a lot of midnight oil working on this and it was a well-thought-out agreement. I think," Hawkins said. "I can't speak for the council, but as for me I can't see us spending any more time on it for the present considering the action taken this morning."

Burns-Carter financial battle looming?

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of Jimmy Carter's biggest stumbling blocks in shaping economic policy next year is likely to be the Federal Reserve Board and its strong-willed chairman, 72-year-old Arthur F. Burns.

Carter and Burns have sharply different views on inflation and unemployment, and which is worse for the country. Carter also wants changes in the Fed's operations and the status of its chairman.

Through its control of the American monetary system, the Fed influences interest rates and the money supply. Carter says he wants the Fed to wield that influence to speed up the economy and reduce unemployment. This can be done without adding to inflation, the president-elect says.

But people who know Burns say he remains convinced that inflation is the chief threat to the nation's economy, and they say it is highly unlikely he would suddenly switch signals just to suit Carter.

Carter can't remove Burns, because Burns' term as chairman doesn't expire until Jan. 31, 1978. A source close to Burns said there is almost no chance Burns will step down early.

None of the terms of the other six members of the board will expire until 1978 either, so Carter will be unable to change the makeup of the Fed unless there is an early resignation.

Burns' first public reaction to the election and what it means for the Fed probably will come when he appears before the Senate Banking Committee on Nov. 11 to disclose the Fed's latest money supply growth targets.

As of Thursday, there had not yet been any contact between Burns and the president-elect.

The Federal Reserve Board acts to influence the money supply and interest rates by putting money into the economy,

Uncertain future in store for PSC members

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Voter adoption of a new law prohibiting utilities from charging customers for uncompleted power plant construction will mean lower rates for nearly one million customers within three months, according to a member of the Missouri Public Service Commission.

But the five commissioners are not expressing any opinions on the message of the voters in the election where the PSC itself was a focal point.

The two-to-one passage of the utility measure, which directly overturns one of the commission's policies, and the upset victory of Democrat Joseph Teasdale for governor has had an unsettling effect on the PSC.

"We just don't know what it will be like," said Commissioner Stephen Jones concerning the future under the administration of Teasdale, who attacked the PSC throughout his campaign.

Teasdale, in upsetting GOP Gov. Christopher S. Bond, had focused much of his campaign against the PSC, which he blamed for soaring utility rates and accused of being controlled by the utilities it regulates. He also aligned himself with the ballot proposition.

He said he would ask for the resignation of the four if elected, exempting Commissioner James Mulvaney because he considers him a consumer advocate.

Commissioner Charles Fain declined to take part in a joint interview with the commission on Thursday, but Jones, along with Commissioner Hugh Sprague and PSC Chairman A. Robert Pierce, indicated they were not ready to resign but had been considering the possibility.

"We have to consider all the options," Jones said. But they said Teasdale has yet to approach them on the issue, although it has been a major part of his campaign for the past three months.

They said they understood Teasdale was going to meet with the commission but there has been no contact from the governor-elect about any meeting.

Several members expressed concern that Teasdale's attacks on them, which they considered unfair at best, have also

Church news

"God's Quest for Man" will be the sermon topic for the Rev. Lawrence R. Stewart, pastor of the First Baptist Church, at the 10:45 a.m. Sunday worship service, which will be broadcast over radio station KSI.

The Ordinance of Baptism will be observed at the beginning of the service. Sunday evening's message will be "Man's Quest for God," and this service will be broadcast over radio station KCBW at 7:10 p.m.

"Adam and Fallen Man" will be the subject of readers this Sunday at the First Church of Christ Scientist. The Golden Text is Luke 6:43.

The Backwood Singers will present an old-fashioned Gospel sing at the Bethlehem Baptist Church, five miles south of Sedalia on South Park Ave., at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. The Rev. Russell Lucas, pastor, is the lead singer of the group, which has toured extensively in the Mid-West.

BLACKWOOD — The annual Lord's Acre sale will be held this Saturday at the Blackwater Methodist Church, located south of Sweet Springs. A turkey dinner will be served at noon, followed by an auction. The event is open to the public.

"Jubilant," a Christian musical experience, will be the featured part of the end of revival services this week at the Free Methodist Church, 723 East 13th. Dan Slater, pastor of the Jefferson City Free Methodist Church, will be the feature speaker.

SWEET SPRINGS — The Rev. C. B. McAfee will speak on the subject, "The Rejoicing Life," at the 10 a.m. Sunday worship service at First Christian Church here.

A home Communion Service will be provided for all sick and shut-in members at 11 a.m. At 9 a.m., church school classes for all ages will be held, as well as the second session Fall Pastor's Class on church membership.

The Rev. Raymond Knox, pastor of Broadway Baptist Church, will speak on the subject "When God's Love Runs Out" at the 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship service. At 7:30 p.m., Virginia Campbell will show slides of countries in Europe and the Far East.

SWEET SPRINGS — "The Church Which Was on Its Toes" will be the sermon topic for the Rev. Eugene Krause, pastor of Immanuel Lutheran Church here at this Sunday's worship service. The service will be broadcast live at 10:30 a.m. over radio station KMMO-KMFL in Marshall.

SWEET SPRINGS — A youth-led revival that began Friday at the First Baptist Church here will continue through Sunday, according to the Rev. James West, pastor.

The schedule includes Sunday School at 10 a.m. Sunday; an 11 a.m. worship service, a 1 p.m. basket dinner and a second worship service at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Students of Southwest Baptist College will lead the revival. Mrs. LonAnn Prindle is in charge of the youth program for the weekend.

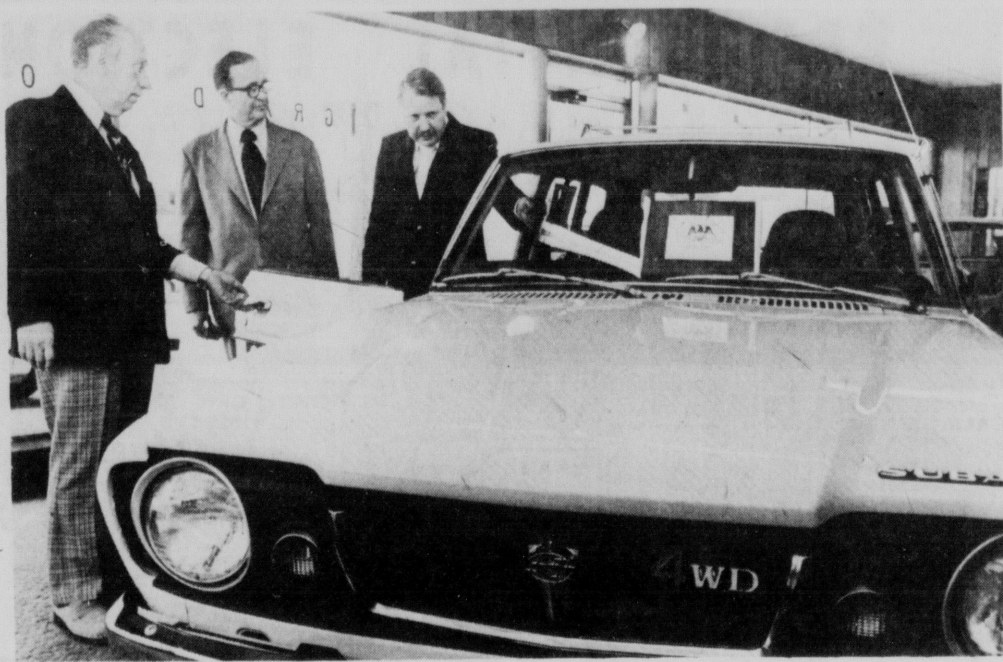

The revival is open to the public.

The Rev. Robert Magee, pastor of the First Christian Church, will speak on the topic, "Loved to Wholeness" at the 10:10 a.m. Sunday worship service that will be broadcast over radio station KDRO at 11:30 a.m. Church School will be held at 9 a.m.

The Rev. Ernest Shull, pastor of Cumberland Presbyterian Church, will speak on the topic, "Good as Gold," at the 10:45 a.m. Sunday worship service. His message for the 8:30 a.m. service, which will be broadcast over radio station KSI, will be "Called and Chosen."

"Faithful Stewards" will be the sermon topic for the Rev. Dr. Roger Williams, pastor of Broadway Presbyterian Church, for this Sunday's worship service. The text is I Corinthians 3:10-4:5.

Church news items must be submitted to The Democrat-Capital newsroom no later than noon Thursday for publication that week. The time required for editing and composing room operations makes this necessary.

TV epic focuses on Christ's Jewishness

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — "I'm not trying to convert anyone," says Franco Zeffirelli of his latest and certainly most controversial work, a television epic on the life of Christ portrayed as "Jewish from head to toe."

With an ecumenical cast and Christian and Jewish religious advisers, Zeffirelli and crew have spent $12 million in what is billed as an attempt to strip away the legend and separate the man Jesus from the myth.

"I'm offering what we think is the real story," said the Italian director, who shot to international fame with his stance, pictures the Virgin Mary, played by Olivia Hussey, suffering labor pains. It also shows a graphic, bloody crucifixion scene.

"The crucifixion was a shattering, gruesome act, offensive to human life. And we have pictured it so," the director said.

To tell his story, Zeffirelli cast some of the world's leading film stars as disciples and in other supporting roles. They include Lord Laurence Olivier as Nicodemus, Rod Steiger as Pontius Pilate, Anne Bancroft as Mary Magdalene, Peter Ustinov as Herod the Great.

But for Christ, Zeffirelli cast threatened the status quo, although actually put to death by the Romans.

Zeffirelli said the two rabbis who served as advisers had no complaints with the version, although some Roman Catholics have objected to the scene of Mary in labor. Zeffirelli is a Roman Catholic.

Lutheran resignations reach five

AURORA, Colo. (AP) — A fifth district president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod has resigned in protest against practices and policies of the church administration.

The Rev. Dr. Waldemar Meyer, head of the Colorado district, said in resigning he could no longer serve in a denomination that "consistently fails to use the Gospel in its dealing with people" and instead relies on "legal pronouncements, majority and... coercive power."

Four other district presidents (similar to bishops), who had been kept in office by their districts despite orders from the church president, the Rev. Dr. J. A. O. Preus, that they be fired, also have since resigned.

The prolonged denomination conflict involves efforts of the administration to require a literalistic interpretation of the Bible and to bar from the ministry those trained in a breakaway seminary.

a relatively unknown British actor, Robert Powell, who jumped from the rock musical "Tommy" and "Mahler" to the role.

Zeffirelli emphasizes that his version is an attempt to weave an historical tapestry, not simply a Christian legend, and therefore depicts Christ as Jewish, something obviously known but not always stressed.

"Christianity was invented long after his death," the director said.

"Christ was born and died an Orthodox Jew," said producer Vincenzo Labella, who produced another religious epic for TV on the Life of Moses.

Zeffirelli's Christ is pictured as a victim of the Jewish establishment because he

"Taming of the Shrew" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Entitled "The Life of Jesus," Zeffirelli's epic will be televised next year in the United States (NBC), Britain and Italy as starters, serialized in six episodes concluding on Easter Sunday.

Zeffirelli hopes his epic breaks new ground in portrayals of Christ as seen in the more than a dozen films made on his life ranging from "King of Kings" to "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Price drop predicted for pork products

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Rapid increases in hog production will drop pork prices below beef next year, Glenn Grimes, livestock marketing economist at the University of Missouri-Columbia, said Thursday.

Speaking at the Missouri Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers, Grimes said pork products should fall 15 to 20 cents a pound from their 1976 average of $1.40.

He predicted increases in hamburger prices because of a predicted slowdown in the culling of the nation's beef cattle herds.

But Grimes looks for an increase in steak and roast prices along with an increase in the price of fed cattle. "We are expecting, however, that the price of fed cattle will be higher in the first quarter of 1977 than it is now," he said.

Legal action not planned against girls

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Kim Roberts, assistant district attorney, said Thursday there will be no legal action taken against four girls ranging up to age 6 who were involved in a beating sex attack on a 3-year-old Haysville girl.

He said he was depending on the parents to arrange psychiatric tests and counseling for the children involved.

Officers said it appeared the beating was a game of tag that turned rough after one girl fell down and the four girls began beating the 3-year-old.

Roberts said the attack was more of a beating than a sexual assault, but he indicated there was evidence of the latter.

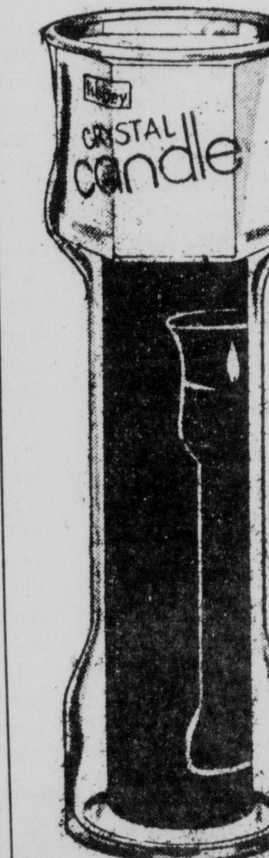

Pipe break puts smoke over K.C.

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Heavy black clouds of smoke covered the business district Thursday when a petroleum distillate pipe apparently ruptured inside a furnace at the Phillips Petroleum Co. plant in the Fairfax Industrial District.

No injuries were reported.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday at the funeral home.

Over 60 dogs, cats adopted from shelter

Sedalians have adopted over 60 dogs and cats in the past two months, a significant increase over previous months, according to Mrs. Arlene Funnell of the Mid-Missouri Humane Society here.

Speaking at the society's monthly meeting Thursday night, Mrs. Funnell told a group of about 20 persons that the city animal shelter had given away 40 dogs and 22 cats during the months of September and October. She said this was a "definite increase in the adoption rate" at the shelter, although no comparative figures were available.

Mrs. Funnell attributed the increase in part to the society's public relations program, especially to the Oct. 9 open house at the city animal shelter, which more than 100 people attended. On that day alone, she said, four dogs and four cats were adopted. The open house was also successful in increasing the society's membership, she said.

Those who already own pets have been taking advantage of the society's pet spaying and neutering contest. Four contestant winners were selected at random from about 20 entries Thursday night. They will be presented with a certificate allowing them to have their pet spayed or neutered at half price with the society picking up the rest of the tab.

The November winners were Elaine Rehmer and Judy Meyer, both of Smithton; Laura Paxton, 407 North Quincy; and Vincent Cutler, Route 1. Entries for the Dec. 2 drawing may be sent to the Mid-Missouri Humane Society, P.O. Box 1171, Sedalia, Mo., 65301. All entries should include the contestant's name, address, and type and sex of pet.

In order to continue such programs, a fund-raising craft sale has been scheduled for Nov. 26 in the lobby of the Missouri Public Service building, 400 South Ohio. Articles will be on sale from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. They may be donated on or before Nov. 25 to Mrs. Ray Hendricks, 1614 West 20th.

The society also announced tentative plans to sponsor a float in the Chamber of Commerce's annual Christmas parade, to be held Dec. 4. Mrs. Marie Shipwright was named chairman of the parade committee.

Hunting equipment stolen from car

More than $120 worth of hunting equipment was reported stolen sometime between 11:40 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Wednesday at State Fair Community College, according to police.

Mitchell Dale Gant, Florence, said he parked his car on the west side of the college's automotive mechanics building, with a bow, a quiver with arrows, and other equipment lying in the back seat. When he returned, the items were missing. One car door was reported unlocked.

The educational building of the First Baptist Church, Sixth and Lamine, was apparently broken into sometime between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 8:20 a.m. Thursday, according to police. Rowena Sievers, 600 West Broadway, a secretary at the church, reported two window panes broken out on the south side of the church. Although attempts were made to enter the rooms, nothing was reported taken, police reported.

Thieves attempted to break into Roth's Department Store, Thompson Hills Shopping Center, late Thursday night, but apparently failed to gain entry.

Police reported that a window in the rear of the building was found broken about 11:18 p.m. Thursday. The glass apparently had been carefully removed and put in a neat pile. A search of the building did not turn up any evidence of entry.

Final results

With the official final totals reached in Ohio and Oregon Thursday, this is how the country voted in the just completed presidential election. Ford and Carter virtually split the country down the middle, with Carter dominating the Eastern half, especially the South, while failing to capture any state west of Texas except Hawaii.

Networks praise ruling as free speech victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television viewers should expect no immediate changes in early-evening programs as a result of a federal court decision against the networks' "family hour" viewing policy.

U.S. District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson ruled Thursday that the major TV networks violated constitutional rights of free speech in adopting the policy last year.

Ferguson did not, however, abolish "family hour" programming, which was designed to calm public protest by keeping sex and violence from early-evening television likely to be watched by children.

He merely said NBC, CBS and ABC couldn't delegate authority for setting the policy to the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB).

The decision was hailed a victory for free speech by the three entertainment guilds, two production companies and nine situation-comedy makers that had filed a lawsuit in October 1975.

"Americans everywhere won a victory today," said producer Norman Lear, creator of "All in the Family" and other hit comedy series.

CBS and ABC said they would appeal Ferguson's decision. NBC and the NAB said they would review the decision before commenting.

CBS, which led the fight for the industry's adoption of the policy, said, "In the meantime and until further notice, CBS will voluntarily continue to adhere to the family viewing concept."

The NAB adopted the policy in September 1975 after network officials held a closed meeting with Federal Communications Commission Chairman Richard E. Wiley. The networks and 462 television stations now subscribe to the policy.

In Ferguson's 223-page opinion, the judge also held that the FCC violated the First Amendment "by issuing threats of government action" through Wiley "should (the) industry not adopt the family viewing policy or the equivalent...." He said "censorship by government or privately created review boards cannot be tolerated."

Ferguson ruled that the NAB and networks were liable for any damages that Lear's production company suffered from the policy. No date has been scheduled to consider damages and a contention by the unions that the "family hour" policy violated federal antitrust laws.

Man pleads guilty; involved in chase

A rural Sedalia man pleaded guilty to a charge of driving 90 miles-per-hour in a 50 mph. zone in Municipal Court Friday morning, after a high-speed chase with police Wednesday night.

Curtis Judd, 19, Route 3, was fined $40 following his guilty plea Friday.

Judd reportedly lead officer John Filicetti on a chase just west of Sedalia. Filicetti observed a car pull from behind the Firestone Store on West Broadway at a high speed and chased the car. The vehicle would not stop for the police car's red light and siren.

The chase continued until the police car overtook and came to a stop on Route Y near the William Parkhurst farm and had to be towed back to Sedalia.

The car was later seen at Judd's home and a warrant was issued for Judd's arrest. He turned himself into police about 6:10 a.m. Thursday.

Merrell selected president pro tem

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Sen. Norman E. Merrell was chosen today as the president pro tem of the Missouri Senate, promising to work toward the establishment of a "good working relationship" with Democratic Gov.-elect Joseph P. Teasdale.

Merrell, the former chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, was selected by acclamation as the 24 state Democratic senators caucused here for the first time since Tuesday's general election.

Sen. John Schneider of St. Louis was chosen narrowly over Sen. Jack Gant of Independence as the chamber's majority leader.

On a secret vote, Schneider received 13 votes for the majority leader's position compared with 11 for Gant.

Merrell, who is from Monticello, said he was anxious to meet with Teasdale, who scored a surprising upset over incumbent Republican Christopher S. Bond Tuesday.

Pen-pal balloon found in Indiana

When it comes to picking up new pen pals, its hard to beat a balloon — at least that's no doubt the opinion of young Duston Burnett, Route 3.

Burnett, along with about 30 members of his mother's Girl Scout troop, launched helium-filled balloons into the open sky Oct. 23. Tied to these were plastic-enclosed notes containing the names and addresses of the senders. Less than a week later, on Oct. 28, Burnett's balloon was found in the countryside near Newport, Ind., by Mike Cutrell.

Cutrell, who was checking animal traps when he spied the balloon, wrote that he was 30 years old and had two young children.

"It was really thrilling for Duston to receive the nice letter the other day," Mrs. Burnett said. "We hoped people would be kind enough to respond and its certainly gratifying when they come through as Mr. Cutrell did."

hurt morale of the staff, and while there has been no mass of resignations, many staff members "are looking over their shoulders now."

"We're independent, we haven't played politics in this election," Sprague said of the attacks. "The point is that we stayed out of it. We didn't respond to any of the criticism and I don't want to respond to it now."

The commission, however, does not see the results of the balloting as a public vote of no confidence, either in the election of Teasdale or in the adoption of a law that restricts PSC authority.

"If you give the people a chance to vote for a lower electric bill, they'll vote for a lower electric bill," Jones said. "The people are dissatisfied with rate increases and we're the only commission that can raise their cost of living."

David Leuthold of the University of Missouri surveyed 1,000 voters in Boone County as they left the polls on Tuesday and said the results led to the same conclusion.

"I see it as the people expressing not so much an attitude toward the Public Service Commission but toward the utilities, although we don't have much information to base that on," he said.

The PSC has allowed three utilities to pass on financing of uncompleted construction to customers, and under the newly-adopted law those costs will now have to be removed within three months. Customers of Kansas City Power & Light Co., which has the largest amount of such costs in its rates, Union Electric Co. and St. Joseph Light & Power Co. will be affected.

Although the exact procedure for removing the costs will not be determined for another 10 days, Jones said he was sure bills for all three companies' customers would be cut, at least for a while. Customers of KCP&L will get the largest reduction, the average customer saving 65 cents a month.

But Jones said the utilities will probably get back all or part of that reduction the next time they ask for increased rates because they will find it harder to finance power plant construction.

Any anti-commission feeling among the voters, the commissioners indicated, is probably due to the nature of the job and the lack of understanding people have about it.

"The problem is the commission has to wear two hats," Mulvaney said. "We have to be reasonable and fair to consumers and by law make sure that the person who puts his buck in (the utility stockholder) gets a fair and equitable return."

tax reform and for a new and comprehensive energy policy.

He said the narrow victory in the popular vote and the electoral college win gives him a mandate sufficient to tackle the tasks he wants. "We had a clear majority of the total electorate," he said.

Carter said the slimness of the victory "is fairly typical" of recent elections. "I don't feel timid or cautious or reticent about moving aggressively to carry out my commitments because I only got about 300 electoral votes," he said. "I'll be very aggressive in carrying out my commitments to the American people."

But he said, "I don't underestimate the difficulty" in accomplishing the goals he has set for his administration.

"I know the American people realize that we can't do everything," said the president-elect.

And he said the success of his administration will depend on cooperation and in bringing the electorate into the governmental process. "It's going to involve a great deal of cooperation between myself as president-elect, those who will serve in the administration and the American people and the Congress," he said.

Carter said he has not yet set any list of priorities for his administration, but he vowed to do so over the next few weeks. He said he will announce the decisions publicly as they are made.

At one point, he was asked to comment on the possibility that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is planning to raise oil prices. While continuing to stress his intention to avoid interfering with the Ford administration's prerogatives, he said such a move by OPEC would be a serious blow to the U.S. economy. He said in regard to such matters that he can't act as diplomat or policymaker yet.

Carter said the authority to deal with such a problem is still Ford's and "I have none whatsoever" until January.

On the election, Carter said he didn't think the voting showed a strong, negative reaction against Ford and that it did not indicate a sharp difference in voter trust between the two men.

But he said he thought the majority of voters felt it was time for a change, and that they had wanted the Democrat's promised action on the problems of unemployment and inflation.

Asked about foreign policy, Carter said he will try to improve relations with allies and open the policymaking process to Congress and the American people.

Higher the pressure, greater the risk

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth of a 10-part series on the keys to better heart health.)

By Alton Blakeslee
and Jeremiah Stamler, M.D.

One bit of advice to keep healthy hearts is easy to follow: Know your own blood pressure. It's absolutely essential to bring high blood pressure down, to avoid numerous damaging effects.

Your pressure can be unhealthily high without your even knowing it. There may be no signs whatsoever, or only vague clues which you can easily attribute to something else. A flushed face, a tendency to frequent nosebleeds, may or may not be a symptom of a disease hurting your heart.

Normal pressure for adults is usually defined as readings below 140/90 and it's far better to have a lesser reading of 100/70. The first figure refers to the systolic pressure, when the heart is pumping blood out through arteries. The lower figure, the diastolic, means the pressure in blood vessels when the heart is resting, between beats.

A reading of 160/95 indicates high pressure and danger to the heart and arteries, and danger of heart attacks. The higher the pressure is, the greater the risk. High blood pressure—hypertension is the medical term—also threatens blood vessels in the brain, increasing the risk of strokes with paralytic or lethal results. Kidneys and eyes also can be hard hit by elevated blood pressure.

Just by itself, hypertension doesn't lead to significant atherosclerosis, but it does intensify and aggravate the artery disease when a person also consumes a diet high in fats and cholesterol.

Figures from pooled studies show how risks add up. For men aged 30 to 59 who had hypertension alone, their death rate over the next 10 years was twice that of men with no risk factors. When men either smoked or had high blood cholesterol as well as high blood pressure, the risk of dying was more than trebled. The death rate was five times higher for men who smoked, had high cholesterol and high blood pressure.

Some 24 million Americans have high blood pressure, with a sizeable proportion not aware of it, surveys show. It is about twice as prevalent among blacks as whites. Prevalence rises with age.

And it can start very early. A tendency toward hypertension may be detectable by age 6 months in susceptible infants. High blood pressure tends to run in families, so some families should be especially alert about it.

Blood pressure is easily and painlessly checked with an inflated cuff over the arm, and a stethoscope to listen for the pulse at the elbow.

Not long ago, high blood pressure was beyond medical control. But beginning some 20 years back, there has come an array of drugs that can almost always do some good, often controlling it and maintaining it at normal levels. Some drugs have side effects in some people, so your doctor may begin with one, then change to another better suited to you. The drugs usually must be taken continuously for years, but fortunately, most are not expensive.

Further, proper diet and possibly exercise may influence blood pressure for the better. Limiting salt intake is often helpful, or even sometimes necessary. The same may be true for controlling obesity. Rest and relaxation may be helpful and so is giving up smoking.

A huge effort to reduce the ravages of hypertension is underway with the National High Blood Pressure Education Program of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute. It seeks to detect people with high pressure, get them medically evaluated, and then under effective, long-term care.

With drugs available that can control blood pressure, why then—it is often asked—aren't there drugs that protect against the artery disease of atherosclerosis?

Scientists do not anticipate a drug that someday would put a shield around your arteries and heart. But the quest is on for some drugs that might do part of the task, such as reducing blood cholesterol, or blood clotting that can plug up narrowed arteries.

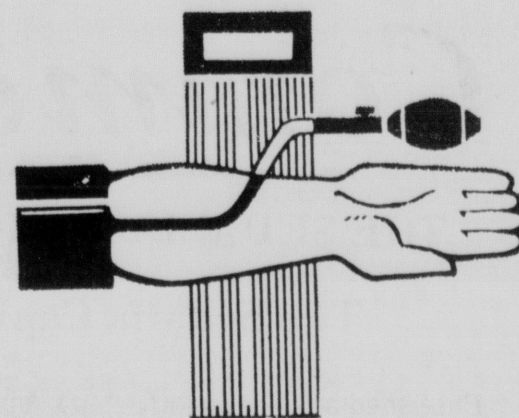

For nine years, between 1966 and 1975, in 53 clinical centers, medical researchers assessed five drugs for ability to protect men who had already had one or more heart attacks. More than 8,300 men, aged 30 to 64 at the outset, participated in the project sponsored by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute.

All five drugs turned out to have disadvantages, either because of side effects, or failure to lower blood cholesterol significantly, or because in one or two instances men taking the drugs had a higher death rate from new heart attacks than men taking placebos—harmless and useless sugar pills.

The drugs tested were two dosages of estrogen, the female hormone; dextrothyroxine; clofibrate, and niacin, a B-vitamin.

Aspirin, that famous standby, is being studied to see if it is able to retard clotting of blood and thus prevent blood clots in heart arteries. And other drugs are being examined, or sought, that might help keep arteries safer from atherosclerosis.

Do you know your blood pressure?

Foreign arms sales part of U.S. policy

Over the past 15 years, the "arsenal of democracy" has changed its arms supply policy from that of giver to seller. U.S. arms sales to foreign nations have jumped from around $500 million prior to 1961 to nearly $18 billion in 1976.

This situation has been a subject of congressional concern on the one hand and has solved a number of problems on the other, says David J. Louscher, assistant professor of political science at the University of Akron.

Writing in "Orbis," a foreign policy quarterly, he lists some of the reasons why foreign military sales — FMS — has become such big business:

It helps with the balance of payments deficit.

It is an alternative to the constant policy of giving aid to other countries, which has upset many congressmen over the years.

It is a means for nations to contribute to their own defense, in line with the "Nixon Doctrine" of the late 1960s that in the future, the U.S. will not aid foreign countries by sending troops but will help with equipment either purchased for cash or with low-interest loans.

For our allies, FMS is a means to upgrade European defense systems and help the Europeans contribute to the cost of the NATO alliance.

For underdeveloped countries, the U.S. looks to FMS as a means of establishing regional power balances, maintaining influence in the area and—ironically—controlling arms races.

In domestic terms, FMS helps to reduce the need of American manpower overseas, reduces our overall defense costs and, not least, is a means of subsidizing and assisting economically desperate defense industries.

In that regard, Louscher notes that between 1962 and 1967, FMS provided $1 billion in profits to American industry and 1.4 million man hours of work for American labor.

Despite growing congressional criticism of the extent of foreign military sales, there is little chance the program will be dismantled, Louscher believes.

Rather, this criticism represents a recognition by Congress that FMS has become our primary foreign policy instrument, that an arms sale decision in many parts of the world is the foreign policy of the United States and that if Congress wishes to play a major role in foreign policy it will have to maintain greater control over arms sales. "Well bless my Seoul. There's another one."

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The South Korean effort to seduce members of Congress has been two-tiered. The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, the Korean holy man, took the high, ecclesiastical road, and Tongsun Park, a Korean entrepreneur, followed the low, wayward road.

Both men have been tied to the South Korean lobbying campaign by the Washington Post, which cited "electronic evidence." According to the Post, a tape recording apparently exists of a discussion between South Korea's President Park Chung Hee, Moon aide Park Bo Hi and the shadowy Tongsun Park.

At the meeting, the three men worked out "a plan to influence U.S. congressmen," the Washington Post reported.

The South Korean government has denied any connection between President Park and entrepreneur Park. Moon's man has denied the meeting ever took place and has challenged his accusers to produce the alleged recording. There have also been over-the-shoulder denials from Tongsun Park at airports from Tokyo to Paris.

Both the ecclesiastic and the entrepreneur, nevertheless, suddenly became active on Capitol Hill in the early 1970s. By the beginning of this year, we were able to count 19 Moon missionaries operating on Capitol Hill. We reported on Jan. 12, 1976: "They stroll the hallways daily, buttonholing senators and congressmen, offering free trips and other inducements."

Moon himself made two evangelical appearances on Capitol Hill before our calls made it impossible for him to find a sponsor who would arrange a room for him. At no time did we question his right to deliver a religious message; we were troubled only by the political overtones. Congressmen reported to us, for example, that Moon missionaries had offered them free trips to Korea.

Those who heard Moon preach on Capitol Hill say he delivered a strong anti-Communist message, laced with

Merry-go-round

Korean connection atop Capitol Hill

Christian philosophy. They recall that he linked the United States, Israel and South Korea as the three great bulwarks against communism. He also defended Richard Nixon during the Watergate crisis.

He spoke in Korean, with Park Bo Hi delivering the translations. Koreans told us that Moon's remarks were often rambling and ambiguous, but the translations invariably were precise and pointed. Our sources have the impression that Park, indeed, is the Rasputin behind the benevolent, smiling Moon.

Each of the evangelist's appearances on Capitol Hill was attended by about 100 people. Perhaps 15 to 20 were members of Congress, the remainder aides and secretaries. Rep. Bill Chappel Jr., D-Fla., introduced Moon at the first rally; Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., made the second introduction.

The Moon movement's biggest catch in Congress was House Speaker Carl Albert. We reported on Dec. 9, 1975, that Susan Bergman, a young, hazel-eyed disciple of the Korean religious-political cultist, had developed a curious relationship with the powerful speaker.

In the mornings, she would greet him in the hallway and present him with flowers. Then she would brew Ginseng tea for him in the small kitchen down the hall from his office. She would serve it to him in the speaker's ornate chambers, where she stayed for an hour or two each morning.

When the speaker left to preside over the House, sweet Susan would often appear in the House gallery in the special section reserved for congressmen's families. She would watch the speaker in action hour upon hour.

Albert described the Moon missionary to us as "just a nice girl, a very nice girl, a Jewish girl from New York. She got all hepped up on the Lord Jesus and she just wants to share it. I think that's a nice thing. She's trying to convert me." As he talked, we noticed a black-covered, gold-trimmed copy of Moon's catechism, "Divine Principle," on the speaker's shelf.

While the Rev. Moon quoted the Bible to religious congressmen, Tongsun Park allegedly passed out cash and gifts to the irreligious. The Washington Post, quoting federal investigators, has charged that he distributed between $500,000 and $1 million each year to congressmen and other Washington officials.

We first got wind of Park's activities in early 1974 when we caught him on a strange trip with Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif. We told the story on April 1, 1974.

A classified cable from the U.S. embassy in Sana, Yemen, reported that the congressman "was joined here by a Mr. Park, a former South Korean national engaged in shipping, elaboration of foreign investment opportunities and apparently political lobbying in Washington."

The curious pair also visited Saudi Arabia and Egypt. Indeed, an obliging State Department arranged accommodations for the Korean operator.

In a classified cable to the various embassies, the department asked "each post except Cairo" to ensconce Park in a "single room located next to or near room reserved for" the congressman. In Cairo, telegrammed State, "Mr. Park requests a suite on the river side of the Hilton."

We asked Park why he happened to be touring the Middle East with a congressman. They traveled together, said Park, because Hanna "is like my brother."

We also learned that Park was entertaining members of Congress in the posh, exclusive Georgetown Club, which he established in Washington.

Despite these reports in 1974, the State Department didn't get around to investigating Tongsun Park's activities until November 1975.

Looking at the election

By DOUG KNEIBERT

This week, because of post-election exhaustion, the author will interview himself, while reclining on a couch.

Q — What about Jimmy Carter?

A — He is one of the great political phenomena of our time. He was even more obscure than McGovern was in 1972 when his name first appeared as a serious contender. But the big difference is that McGovern fell back into obscurity under a landslide, while Carter won.

Q — How do you account for this?

A — It is both a religious and a political event. The untold story — and there may be no real way to tell it — is that evangelical Protestants, a potent force in American life, saw Carter as their candidate. Carter has more than 12 million fellow Southern Baptists alone. I for one admire Carter for his unabashed Christian convictions, but I'm having trouble with Walter Mondale as one of the disciples.

This religious factor, besides regional pride, was one of the big reasons Carter swept the South. You can't explain it in terms of political appeal, because Carter's politics aren't that congenial to the South.

Big Labor is the other big factor in Carter's victory. But I'm worried about all those due-bills that George Meany is holding.

Q — How soon will we know what kind of president Carter is going to be?

A — The Cabinet and second-level appointments will tell us a lot. State, Defense, Justice will be crucial indicators. I've been concerned about some of the people who seem to have Carter's ear and want to "educate" him along the lines of the conventional — and bankrupt — liberalism.

There's talk of another "100 days" a la FDR, but the country doesn't need radical steps at this point. The temptation will be great, however, since the liberal approach of "doing something" (even if it's wrong) often appeals more to human nature than sometimes doing nothing, which can often be the better course in the long run.

Q — What about the vote here in Missouri?

A — It defies rational analysis. I think they should send in a team of political scientists, better yet political psychoanalysts, to try to figure out what happened.

Some good people, by any standard of public service, were thrown out of office on all levels for no valid reasons. When this happens you get concerned about where the good candidates of tomorrow are going to come from.

Q — Any other observations?

A — I hated to see Sen. Jim Buckley go in New York. Here was one of the most articulate and decent voices of responsible conservatism in the country. But if he had to lose, Daniel Moynihan was clearly the better choice to lose to. Anyone who sends Bella Abzug to political oblivion can't be all bad.

Q — What about your political endorsements this year?

A — The sheer power of the press staggers me. Future candidates are already lining up outside my door to get affidavits that they have not been endorsed by The Democrat.

Thirty-three members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and 75 high school and grade school boys met at the St. Francis Hotel... and expressed approval of a move to open up the former YMCA building in Sedalia as a recreation place for the boys and young men of the city.

When the Continental Congress resolved on June 22, 1775, to finance the war with the issuance of $2,000,000 in Continental Currency it announced that these bills of credit would be backed by the "Spanish milled dollar." In doing so they adopted a monetary system long known in the New World. The World Almanac notes that this Spanish dollar later was the model for United States currency.

Government waste hinders economic growth

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON — There is a considerable body of evidence which suggests that a slackening in the American industrial growth rate results in a sharpening of inflation over the long pull.

Cromley

It is also clear the growth in productivity becomes most difficult when the men who manage industry do not have the will or the capital to invest major sums in improved equipment, which could make it possible for workers to produce more.

Will is a nebulous quality, difficult to calculate. The availability of capital is easier to measure. When Congress, the bureaucracy or the president divert large sums which are inefficiently used or expended on marginally useful projects, those funds are not available for private investment. We all suffer.

Take federal subsidies, which, in the aggregate, siphon off billions of dollars. Some of these funds go for quite worthwhile purposes, of course. But much of this free money goes down the drain.

A news report based on government in-house studies notes that some communities, enthused by the availability of federal gifts, have been building sewage disposal plants and systems of a size sufficient to handle populations predicted far in the future. Others are reportedly putting in twice the capacity needed per household, so eager are they for the government largess.

Economist Edward Renshaw, of the State University of New York in Albany, notes that this overgenerous subsidizing has also encouraged suburban sprawl which, he suggests, increases local city operating costs.

Renshaw also points out that the long-time congressional practice of exempting from federal income taxes any interest income earned on municipal bonds encourages the over-expansion of public facilities, relative to private investment.

Meanwhile, discussing federal assistance for municipal transportation, a Brookings Institution study charges that "if the federal government is paying two-thirds of the cost of new equipment, but nothing toward repair and maintenance, local transit offices will naturally replace buses very quickly, long before they should be scrapped. The total cost of providing mass transit will rise sharply, and a large part of the subsidy will serve not to benefit riders but to cover the costs of inefficient decisions."

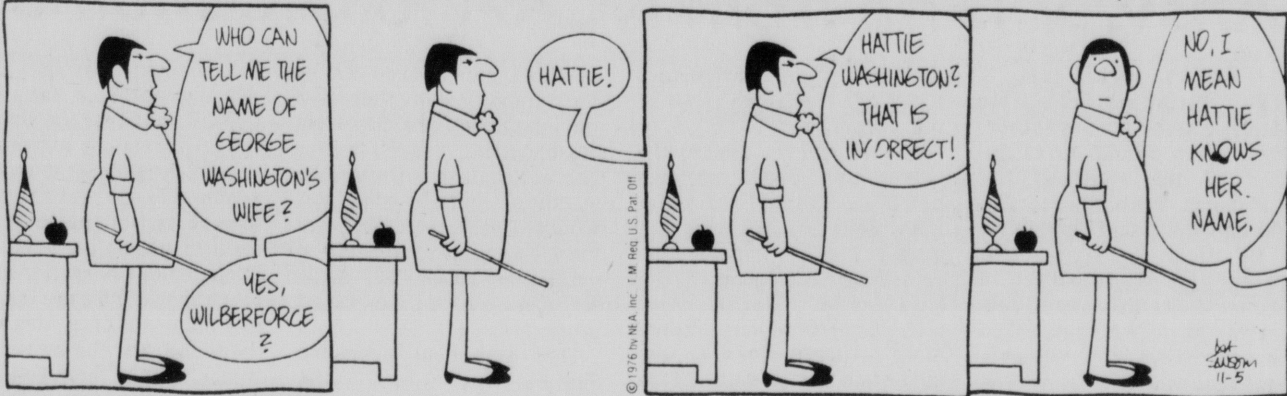

Witness, too, that Congress over the years has mangled the writing of the Social Security laws so thoroughly that employers are effectively discouraged from hiring older workers, students, part-time employees and the disadvantaged.

The common thread which runs through the above examples is waste, either of money or of men and women. Each case too shows how the federal government sops up capital or diverts manpower which might otherwise be used to make us more productive.

It is precisely this shortage of capital, and the lack of will to invest, which today is holding back the modernization and expansion of industry and the employment of millions more men and women. If employed, they would, in turn, spark a boom in those businesses which depend on consumer spending.

It is clear that while the power of the federal government to effectively bolster the economy is marginal it can do a great deal of harm.

raised to three, but East knew something about Sonny's bidding and passed. South looked at his two aces and decided to try two notrump. Sonny doubled! He didn't want East trying three hearts. Everyone passed and Sonny opened the king of clubs. Since the doubleton queen-10 appeared in dummy, and no one held four clubs, Sonny collected five club tricks. Meanwhile, South discarded down to two queens and six diamonds in dummy. He was going to make his contract if diamonds broke. Diamonds failed to break for him and he was held to four tricks so East and West scored 1100 points.

ASK THE JACOBYs

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The late Sonny Moyse, long-time editor of the Bridge World magazine, was one of the most exciting players. He would have been one of the greatest, if it were not for his penchant for taking some action on every hand. Here is one of his triumphs. It was a pair tournament. Moyse sat West and decided that he just could not let North play at two diamonds. After all Sonny was looking at 13 high-card points and a five-card club suit. However he had to go to the three level to bid clubs. He could bid hearts at the two level and did just that. East might well have

A Pennsylvania reader wants to know the meaning of a four-spade opening bid. The answer is that it means whatever the partnership wants it to, but practically all experts, including the Jacobys, use it to show a hand such as ♠A K Q J x x x x ♥ x x x x ♣ x x or ♠K Q J 10 x x x x ♥ x x x x ♣ A x. In other words, eight playing tricks and not too much in high cards.

Ann Landers

Help is where you find it

Dear Ann Landers: God bless you for your reply to the young man who was despondent over his homosexuality. I spent 14 years of my life (I'm 30 now) trying to accept my homosexuality. I was the son of a small-town businessman and scared to death to admit to myself or anyone else that I was gay.

Finally I met a man I wanted to settle down with. Although we hid our relationship from all but a small circle of friends, we had a wonderful life and were very happy together.

When he left me I felt as if my whole world had fallen apart. I was brought up in a Christian home and heard so much about the sinfulness of homosexuality that I stopped going to church.

Fortunately, I met a kind and understanding clergyman who spent many hours helping me see that God loves all his children — gay, straight, whatever.

Since all else failed, I took his advice and gave God a chance. Ann, it was the best decision I ever made. I prayed, "Lord, I am gay and I don't think I can change. Please take control of my life. Thy will be done."

Soon after I prayed I felt serene and at peace. A month later I met another man with whom I plan to spend the rest of my life. I also found the courage to tell my parents. They accepted it beautifully.

I don't recommend to all gays that they tell their parents, but I do urge them to go directly to God, as I did. I have never felt so fulfilled and contented. Life is beautiful. — Your Friend

Dear Friend: Thank you for sharing your experience. And now a word to all who read the Bible faithfully: Please don't tell me to look up Genesis 19, Romans, chapter 1, Leviticus 18:22 or 1 Corinthians 6:9-10, etc.

Help is where you find it. Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for "Skinny Winner," the woman who dieted for her husband's sake, went into therapy after regaining her weight the second time, ditched Mr. Turn-Off and lost her 55 pounds again.

I'm a 16-year-old girl who weighs about 30 pounds more than she should. I recently decided I am NOT going to be fat the rest of my life. I can and will get myself down to a size 8 dress and stay there.

So far I've lost ten pounds. Both my father and boyfriend are anti-fat. Daddy fought the weight battle past year and lost 50 pounds. A few years ago I dieted and lost 30 pounds but I gained it back because I had done it for the men in my life. This time it's for ME.

I have accepted full responsibility for my fatness. No one puts food into my mouth. And no excuse is good enough to be fat. It's not only unattractive but a health hazard. Listen, men with fat wives or girlfriends, mothers with fat daughters. Get off their backs. Leave them alone. I know from experience if you lay off they'll do something about it eventually. Let it be for themselves, not for you. It's the only way they will keep the weight off forever. — Thinner Now Than A Month Ago

Dear Thinner: Beautiful! What an upper for those fatties out there who need emotional support. Let me know when you hit size 8.

Stiff suspension

NHL President Clarence Campbell imposed one of the stiffest penalties of his career Thursday in suspending Detroit Red Wings defenseman Bryan Watson (right) for 10 games. The suspension was handed out as a result of a fight between Watson and Keith Magnuson (left) of the Chicago Black Hawks on Oct. 30. Magnuson, a seven-year veteran defenseman, suffered a broken jaw in the fight.

Design receives OK from voters

By JACK SCHICHT
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Good ideas sell themselves.

So the Conservation Department learned Wednesday after voters narrowly endorsed a one-eighth of one per cent sales tax to finance "Design for Conservation," the 20-year, $500-million grand plan for expanding and preserving the state's wildlife system.

Statewide, the measure received 883,714 favorable votes or 51 per cent, to 848,365 no votes, according to the latest available figures.

In Sedalia, the proposition (Amendment No. 1 on the ballot) carried with 60 per cent of the vote — 5,150 for to 3,489 against. In only one precinct did it fail.

In rural Pettis County, the opposite was true. Thirteen of the county's rural townships voted against the amendment; two were evenly split and three voted in favor. The overall rural vote was 2,871 against to 2,527 for. The absentee vote was 389 for and 365 against.

Constitutional amendments have had about a 25 per cent success rate in Missouri over the years. And this one called for a tax increase. Why did it succeed?

One of the main reasons was that voters knew exactly where their money would be spent. The money wasn't going to the State Legislature to appropriate. It was going straight to the Conservation Department, and studies have shown — at least in Missouri — that the public prefers a specified appropriation.

The plan itself was a good one. It wasn't hastily prepared. Rather, "Design for Conservation" has been on the shelf the last six years, waiting for a way to finance it.

Another factor is that "Design for Conservation" offered something for everyone. Proposed were more wetlands for the duck hunters, more forest areas for the deer hunters, preservation of caves and prairies, expanded facilities for trout fishermen and, perhaps most important, lakes and forest facilities in the St. Louis and Kansas City areas.

For the past 40 years, Missourians have witnessed the growth of their conservation program. The Conservation Department's track record has been a good one. We've seen the return of the deer and wild turkey to the state and have been impressed with the management and continuing beauty of our state wildlife areas.

Amendment No. 1 passed without a media assault warning of the potential dangers if the proposal failed. No high pressure tactics. No pleas. Just a simple promise to spend the money wisely.

The Conservation Department has emphasized that acquisition of land will be the top priority in the first years of the program. In other words, don't expect too much too soon.

Perhaps more than any other reason, pride in conservation was responsible for the mandate. Missouri's Conservation Department became a model for all when it was created in 1936. Now, 40 years later, Missouri has again become the focus of national attention with its unique way of financing conservation.

Missourians can proudly pat themselves on the back for a job well done.

Cardinals pick six; tough battle ahead

NEW YORK (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals General Manager Bing Devine says the easy part is over in baseball's re-entry draft.

"The problem comes in matching ideas with the free agents," Devine said Thursday following the Cardinals' selection of six whose contracts are up for grabs.

Right-handed reliever Bill Campbell of the Minnesota Twins, who compiled a 17-5 record and saved 21 games in 1975, was St. Louis' first choice.

Then came Rollie Fingers of the Oakland A's, also a right-hander; A's outfielder Joe Rudi, Baltimore infielder Bobby Grich, Cincinnati left-hander Don Gullett and Oakland third baseman Sal Bando.

3 harriers to state

Two runners from Sedalia Smith-Cotton and one from Smithton will vie on an individual basis Saturday at Jefferson City's Hough Park in the Missouri State High School Activities Association's state cross country run.

Greg Lovercamp and Brian Dickmann of Smith-Cotton, who finished third and seventh respectively in last week's district qualifying at Kansas City, will compete in the Class AA meet.

Kerry White, the seventh-place finisher in the Class A district meet last week in Fulton, will represent Smithton.

Saturday's state meet concludes the high school cross country season.

Answer is no from NCAA to Oklahoma

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association is not conducting an official investigation of the University of Oklahoma football program, the university said Thursday.

Dr. Paul F. Sharp, in a telegram Wednesday to Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, had asked that the NCAA state "in plain language whether or not the University of Oklahoma is under official investigation by NCAA as required by Section 3 of the official procedure governing the NCAA enforcement program."

A statement released by the university's media information office Thursday said that Byers sent a return telegram stating, "As to your question pertaining to Section 3, the answer is no."

Byers had issued a statement earlier Wednesday saying he told Sharp on Oct. 25 the NCAA had received complaints against OU and "that we were in the process of investigating them to determine the reliability of the sources of the allegations and the extent of supporting details for the charges, and that the results of those initial interviews would determine whether there was cause for the formal notification procedures of the NCAA enforcement program."

That statement prompted Sharp's request for a statement "in plain language" whether the university was under official NCAA investigation.

Dr. J. R. Morris, a school vice president, added in a statement released by the university Thursday: "The reason so much confusion has existed until now about the role of the NCAA is that a newspaper's headlines suggested a formal NCAA investigation when in fact that was not the case."

"To be specific, some sort of complaint had been filed, but that complaint had not yet been evaluated by NCAA in order to determine whether an official investigation was warranted. We have no knowledge of the precise nature of the complaint, but we do know that most complaints never reach the point of becoming official allegations."

"Our concern from the outset has been that media stories can lend credence to complaints which may have no basis in fact and thereby could precipitate an official investigation."

"Therefore, as we said earlier, the difference between an official inquiry and a formal inquiry is not just a play on words. A formal inquiry means that the committee on infractions has made a formal decision that there is evidence to warrant an official inquiry and at that point the institution is notified and fully informed of the matter under inquiry. There is no misunderstanding between the NCAA and the university. We understand the regulations and are very familiar with their procedures for investigations."

"However, there are many questions about why a newspaper would give so much attention to an unevaluated complaint from an unidentified source."

Kentucky adds 9 more races

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky State Racing Commission has increased the number of racing dates in the state for 1977 from 277 to 286.

The commission on Thursday cut off 14 dates from the number the tracks requested.

The largest cuts, in comparison with the requests, were six days apiece in the fall meeting at Churchill Downs and the winter meeting of Commonwealth-At-Latonia. Ellis Park and one Latonia meeting each were cut one day.

Latonia was, in effect, granted two sets of racing dates. One was for the Northern Kentucky track itself and the other was for the now-defunct Commonwealth Raceway at Louisville.

Buffs underdog at Columbia

By PICK M. WRIGHT
Fearless Forecaster

Al Onofrio's conservative game plan against OSU was the subject of a few articles in some of the state's larger papers this past week. And well it should be. Where were the end-arounds, long bombs, slotback reverses and mix-it-up offense that produced wins over Southern Cal and Nebraska? Whether or not you're a believer in wide-open football, consider that OSU's best athlete, Terry Miller, got his hands on the football 26 times. MU's best athlete, Joe Stewart, was involved in but three or four plays from scrimmage. Gamebreakers are only effective when they get their hands on the football.

Colorado (6-2) at Missouri (5-3)

A win by the Buffs would virtually assure them of at least a tie for the league crown. Their last two games are against Kansas and Kansas State. But MU has played spoiler all year and should do it again Saturday. That is, if the offense opens up. Don't look for much defense Saturday. Missouri 34, Colorado 28.

Oklahoma State (5-2) at Nebraska (6-1-1)

The Cowboys' lack of a passing game will be their downfall Saturday. Miller and Taylor will find the Husker defense much more formidable than MU's. On paper, Nebraska is still the best in the Big Eight. And they'll prove it on the field at Lincoln. Nebraska 24, Oklahoma State 13.

Iowa State (6-2) at Kansas (5-3)

KU will be lucky to suit a full squad Saturday, much less entertain hopes of upsetting the bowl-bound Cyclones. Injuries have decimated KU to a point beyond recognition. Iowa State 22, Kansas 14.

Kansas State (1-7) at Oklahoma (5-2-1)

The Sooners are in about as bad shape as the Jayhawks injury-wise. But they could probably field their third team and beat KSU. Oklahoma 38, Kansas State 14.

Smithton has size in spite of losses

By RON HIGGINS
Staff SportsWriter

SMITHTON — Head coach Andy Crist and his Smithton Tigers are high up on the list of top candidates expected to do well in the Kaysinger Conference basketball race this year.

The Tigers, seeded second in the upcoming Kaysinger Conference Tournament in Lincoln next week, finished the 1975-76 campaign with a 17-9 overall mark and a 7-1, second-place finish in the conference.

Crist said he expected to be up in the top spots in the seedings for the tournament. "I thought we should be up there," he said.

Smithton has a lot of height returning this year. Returning varsity lettermen from last season are 6-3 senior John Hays, 6-5 senior Steve Gregory, 5-8 senior Jim Tolliver, 5-8 senior Jamie Griffin and 6-4 junior Steve Cook.

Those moving up from the jayvee to the varsity level this year include 6-0 junior Kelly Cook, 5-7 junior Everett Bohon, 5-8 junior Henry Randall, 6-0 junior Chris Givson and 5-9 sophomore Kerry White.

The Tigers also have two sophomores joining the varsity squad direct from their junior high basketball program. The two are 6-0 Rodney Gibson and 5-11 Tim Stout.

Even though the Tigers have height in their squad this season, coach Crist said he lost some size from last year's team. "We'll just have to make up with aggressiveness," he said.

"I've gotta go with Stover and Cole Camp," said Crist of the teams that will be a problem between his Tigers and the Kaysinger Conference championship. "Warsaw is a sleeper," continued Crist. "Green Ridge and Sacred Heart should be fairly tough with all the people they have returning this year."

Crist said he thought the conference would have a few tough teams and that no team should go undefeated in the conference race.

Crist said he's got a little height back with Hays and Cook returning, but said, "It shouldn't be too bad."

Still Crist has to give Stover a slight edge. "I have to give them a slight edge because of what they've got," he said.

The Smithton coach said that the teams that make the most mistakes will not last long in the race for the conference title.

With what he's got back this year and the experience, Crist expects to, "Be right up there with everybody."

Tigers, Warsaw into finals

A pair of Kaysinger Conference volleyball teams have made it to the finals of the Missouri State High School Activities Association's district girls volleyball tournament at Cole Camp.

Green Ridge, now 20-0 on the year, received one of its toughest tests of the season from Stover in the opening best-of-three sets. But the Tigers pulled off a 15-12 win. After that it was all Green Ridge, which blanked Stover in the second and deciding set, 15-0.

The other Kaysinger team in the finals Saturday at 7:30 p.m. is Warsaw, which entered the tournament with the No. 7 seed. Warsaw eliminated School of the Osage in Thursday's other semifinal match, 15-13, 15-12.

Osage was seeded sixth and like Warsaw, pulled off an upset in the quarterfinals Wednesday to move into the semifinals. Warsaw ousted second-seeded California to advance to the Thursday semifinals; Warsaw downed third-seeded Camdenton in a upset win in the quarterfinals.

With the schools closed across Missouri due to the Missouri State Teachers

2 teams tied

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Jerry McGee and Allen Miller combined for a better-ball nine-under-par 63 and a tie for the lead with Bill Kratzert and Woody Blackburn after the first round of the $200,000 National Team Golf Championship.

3-stroke lead

MELBOURNE, Australia — Australian Stewart Ginn's five-under-par 66 gave him a three-stroke lead over Britain's Guy Wolstenholme after the first round of an international golf tournament.

Association annual meeting in Kansas City Thursday and Friday, the final score between Northwest (Hughesville) and St. Paul's of Concordia in the quarterfinals of the district tourney in Concordia could not be obtained. However, Northwest won the match and moved into the Saturday semifinals.

In other matches Thursday night at Concordia, Independence Truman, Northwest's next opponent, downed Fort Osage, 15-6, 15-11; William Chrisman, now 21-5, ousted Lexington, 15-4, 15-4; and Independence St. Mary's won over Blue Springs, 15-10, 15-6.

Northwest will meet Truman at 5:30 p.m. Saturday and William Chrisman will face St. Mary's at 7 p.m. The winners clash for the championship at 8:30 p.m.

Trim weight to help heart

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have been diagnosed as having "chronic ischemic heart disease with hypertension." I would appreciate your definition of the word "ischemia" and I would like to have any suggestions in regard to the treatment and diet for this disease.

I am 75 years old, a retired lady with a weight of 150 pounds. I am sure this is too much weight for a person who is 5 feet 1.

Presently I am taking hydrodiuril and Aldomet. Are these two medicines adequate for this heart disease?

Dear Reader — Ischemia is a word for inadequate blood flow. The term is now used frequently to indicate there is an obstruction in the coronary arteries to your heart muscle. The obstruction is from the buildup of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries.

This condition leads to inadequate amounts of oxygen being delivered to the heart muscle and at the same time permits the accumulation of carbon dioxide in the heart cells. It is the common form of heart disease these days.

The Hydrodiuril is to help you eliminate salt and with it excess water from the body. It helps to lower blood pressure in many cases. The Aldomet is a more specific treatment for elevated blood pressure.

These medicines help your heart indirectly by controlling your blood pressure. The high blood pressure increases the deposits of fatty-cholesterol substances in the arteries and also works the heart harder.

You are absolutely right about your weight. If you can get rid of every last pound of extra fat you will decrease your blood pressure and the work on your heart.

Dear Dr. Lamb — If a woman has non-invasive carcinoma in situ of the cervix would this necessitate the removal of the uterus — the reports showing the uterus is clear?

Dear Reader — That's a sticky question. Carcinoma in situ is a relatively benign superficial cancer of the surface of the cervix, sometimes overlapping onto the adjacent walls of the vagina and sometimes extending into the opening of the cervix.

It is usually clearly separated from the normal cells. In some ways it is similar to skin cancer — it grows slowly. The problem is that a fairly high percentage of women with these fairly benign cell changes later develop characteristic invasive cancer of the cervix.

There is no clear cut agreement among gynecologists on the proper treatment. And more importantly, no one answer will fit all cases. With sufficient biopsies or removal of a conical section the doctor can be more certain there are no hidden areas of invasive cancer.

The age of the patient and desire to have additional children is also a consideration. If the changes are minimal and easily removed a young woman may be justified in not undergoing a hysterectomy until later but she must be carefully supervised. An older woman, particularly if there is evidence of other disease in the uterus as well, is probably better off to have a complete hysterectomy.

KOMU-TV Channel 8

Plumbing jobs are not always pleasant but they needn't be so difficult either. If your problem is a clogged drain, first try a plunger, and remember it always works better when your sink or tub has some water in it. So, don't wait until the water has all run down.

Now place the plunger around the drain as tightly as possible and push on the plunger using a sharp downward motion. Between plunges, lift the plunger so the drain can refill with water, and you'll also see when the drain has opened.

If it's a toilet that's stopped up, there's a special kind of plunger available, that contains this additional bottom piece, which fits into a toilet more readily. And this plunger can be used for other fixtures simply by folding this bottom up into the top.

Always remember that the plunger is for simple jobs. If plunging doesn't open the clogged drain after a few strokes, don't continue using the plunger, since the blockage may be serious enough to require some other method, or a qualified plumber.

Before you start paying for anything, first try a little plunging.

Was always certain of getting part

By JOAN CROSBY
HOLLYWOOD — Peter Strauss never had any doubt but that some day he would play the role of Rudy Jordache in Irwin Shaw's novel "Rich Man, Poor Man."

And, if you have been watching it as a novel-for-television on ABC-TV (ratings indicate that most are watching), you'll know that Peter is very definitely playing the role, with the style and flair that can make him a major star.

He recalls that four years ago his wife gave him a copy of the novel and he read it.

"There is no ego involved in what I am about to say," he says and a conversation with him is enough to convince you that his ego is under control and in the perfect sport for an actor, "but I told her I was the only one who could play the role of Rudy. I just felt that I knew him very well."

Like the character in the book, Peter's father was a German immigrant and he had plans to become a baker. Peter was born in Croton-on-Hudson, an upstate New York town, not far from New York City, much like Port Philip in the book.

Because of shooting schedules, the story of the Jordache brothers, growing from teen-agers to maturity, was not always filmed chronologically.

"It was like a giant mosaic and it was necessary to fit all the pieces in the right places," he says.

He is also very frank to admit that the quiet way he played the character in early segments had some executives worried.

"What happens as Ruby progresses is more interesting if he is shown as a quiet, shy, introverted boy. I was accused of laying back a bit in the early episodes — which I was."

Peter loves the stage and works locally whenever he has the chance to guard against "getting sloppy in films, which can happen." He's a perfectionist who has learned to like life in California even though there are aspects of "tinsel town" he finds depressing.

He smiles ironically as he says, "What I hate most in life is to be judged, so you can wonder what in hell I chose this profession for. It's masochism. Actors are either exhibitionists, which I am not, or the need comes from a childhood which lacked something. You have to be nuts to be an actor. I would love to be a botanist. This is why I used to feel so self-conscious when someone asked me what I did."

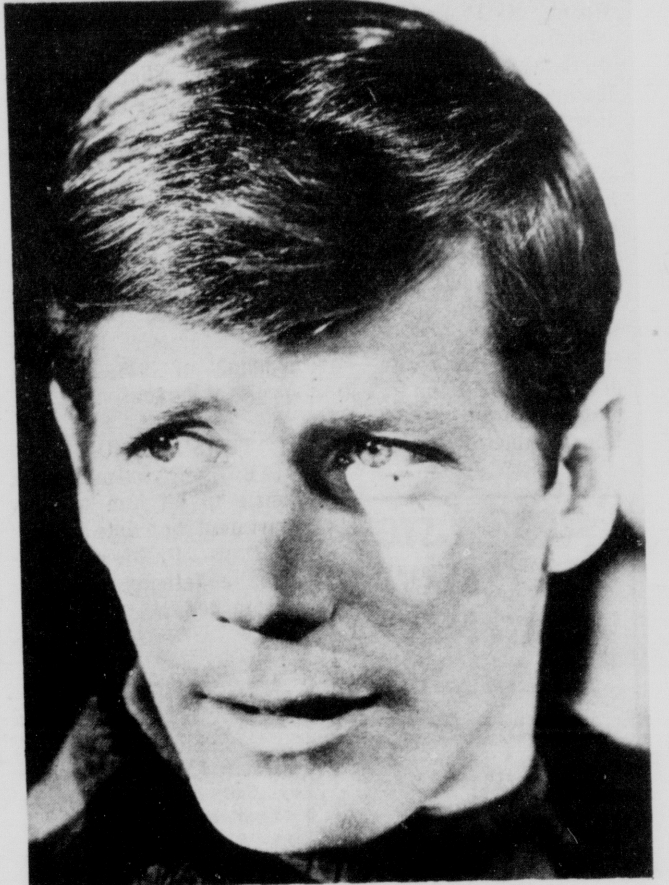

Peter is married to a non-actress named Beverly and they have no children, he says, "because I haven't finished growing up yet."

They have a Jack Russell terrier named Beowulf and he says he would love to have a large place with lots of ground so he could surround himself with dogs. Generally, he prefers them to people.

He has worked constantly, since his student days at Northwestern University, making a film "Hail Hero" off the campus. He was also in "Lonely Are the Brave," playing Teresa Wright's son. "I've been in love with her since 'Best Years of our Lives.' I'm lucky in my theatrical mothers. I have Dorothy McGuire as my mother in Rich Man, Poor Man."

He has also been in "Soldier Blue," which he says was violent but not as violent as critics made it seem; the TV special "Man Without a Country," which he says was one of his favorites, a couple of other TV specials: "The Trial of General Yamashita" and "Attack on Terror." Right after he finished Rich Man, Poor Man, he went into a movie, "The Tycoon," with Robert DeNiro.

He'll be around for some time to come, fighting for his privacy.

Peter Strauss

Virginia believes study helpful

HOLLYWOOD — Today, many actors come into movies and TV without any training at all. A football player gains a thousand yards rushing and right away he's an actor. Or a girl is a successful New York model and, presto, she's an actress.

But there are many others who believe fervently in the value of studying acting as a prerequisite for a career in that trade. It is their feeling that you can't do justice to a part until you have that training.

One of the latter group is Virginia Vincent and her skill is a pretty good argument for her position. She has been one of our better young character actresses for some time and she's still plying her trade successfully.

Virginia Vincent seems to be able to play almost anything, and play it well. Mostly, though, she's the funny blonde lady, often slightly addled.

You haven't seen her much lately. In fact, she has just finished a role in the Walt Disney film, "Treasure of Matecumbe," which is her first role in more than a year and a half.

"This is my first real part since my accident," she says.

Some 18 months ago, she slipped and fell and hurt her hip badly. She was on crutches for much of that time and, finally, had to have an operation and the surgeons installed a plastic hip. She says she is fine now.

"It really hasn't slowed me down," she says. "I had to give up tennis, but I've taken up sewing instead. I made a copy of a Galanos gown which was fun and I'm just finishing a three-piece suit."

She says she is a firm believer in studying whatever she wants to do — sewing now, acting when she was younger.

She comes, originally, from Goshen, N. Y., which used to be the site of the Hambletonian trotting classic. Her father had a hotel in Goshen but then gave that up and became a railroad mail clerk. For a few years the family moved to New York City and it was during that period that Virginia was first bitten by the acting bug.

"I wanted to be a Broadway star," she says, "but I realized I knew nothing so I enrolled in the Pasadena Playhouse."

After she finished there, she quickly got a job in a road company of "Tobacco Road," and toured for two years. But even with that behind her, she was unsatisfied, and felt there was still a need for more study.

"There was something lacking," she says, "so I went to New York and studied for several more years with Stella Adler and Lee Strasberg."

Over the years, she's done many things — stage, film,

TV. She had one fling at a series, on Joey Bishop's first try, but says at the time she didn't want a series.

But now, in this era of scarcer acting jobs, she says she'd like one.

"But," she says, "there are days when I'm happy I only work once in a while. My neighbor is Ellen Corby of The Waltons and she's never home. Today, I sunbathed and swam and poor Ellen was working. I don't envy that part of the life of a person on a series."

Car freak

What kind of car does Paul Michael Glaser drive on Starsky and Hutch. My friend says a Dodge and I say a Ford Torino. — Jeff Driver, Lubbock, Tex.

Your friend should know better than to argue with someone whose name is Driver. Starsky, and occasionally Hutch, does indeed drive a Torino with a custom paint job.

Reddy when you are

I am a very big fan of Helen Reddy and never miss her on Midnight Special. Please give me an address where I can write her and tell her what a great job she is doing on the show. Thank you. — E. J., Charleston, S.C.

Write Helen in care of the show at NBC-TV, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

TV scout reports

Notes, gathered under the mistletoe at various Hollywood Christmas parties? Greg Morris telling how he may be going to Haiti soon for a movie.

Hal Linden and his wife, Fran, at another party — and Fran was wearing what looked to be an exotic Oriental or South American necklace of odd-shaped silver pieces. On closer examination, it proved to be made of the taps from tap shoes. Fran was a tap dancer when Hal met her.

Beautiful blonde actress Lynn Freyse Borden telling she is working on a biography of her late father, Bill Freyse, who for 35 years wrote and drew the classic comic panel, Our Boarding House With Major Hoople, for Newspaper Enterprise Association. Lynn was in a recent Police Story episode and was a regular on the old Hazel series.

Susan Clark and Wayne Rogers at another party. Rogers introduced himself to Susan, told her how much he admired her work in "Babe." He took her aside, said he had a part he wanted her to do in the three-hour movie which will kick off his new City of Angels series. She said she'd like to read it.

Wayne Rogers, outspoken as usual, said he thinks TV is "a toilet," but added, "all you can hope to do is to rise to the top of it."

John Denver's music has inspired philosophical essays, sermons from the pulpit, marriage vows and newspaper editorials. Now his music is having another effect. A stock broker in Portland, Ore. (Theo Forestal of May and Camp), who is recommending the stock of a Colorado bank, feels that every time Denver sings his hit, "Rocky Mountain High," businessmen in the big eastern cities get the urge to move their companies to Denver — the city, not the singer.

The Campanella brothers, Joseph and Frank, are acting in the same episode of The Rockford Files. No, they are not playing brothers — "I play a man out to kill Joe," says Frank — and yes, they have acted together before.

Movie buffs should really enjoy "Make It Again, Sam," a survey of movie remakes by Michael B. Druxman, who is also a Hollywood press agent.

Rodney Dangerfield says he tried to join a swim club that was so exclusive "you had to know two fish."

Television Highlights
